History of the Pendek family's log rafting tours

The Pendek family's log rafting on the river follows an old tradition. Back in the 1910s the Pendeks were transporting timber through the gorge by tying the logs together as a raft. By this means people and goods could also travel down the river since no other routes in this impassable region existed. But only since 1964 did Adem Pendek offer rafting through the entire Tara Gorge as a special experience to interested nature lovers from all over the world. His first log-rafting trip for tourists through the Tara Gorge was successfully made with his German friend, Burkhard Schmidt and a group from Wurzburg and with the exception of the war years in Bosnia-Herzegovina, this trip has been repeated annually. Adem was the first official professional raftsman on the river Tara and remained so until his tragic death in 1992. Therefore, it is not surprising that the traditional type of log-rafting has been continued by the Pendek family. Now in its fourth generation.

I am Fikret Pendek and I was born in 1964, the second son of Adem Pendek. Already as a young boy I accompanied my father on numerous rafting trips and so I learned the difficult craft of rafting from early childhood. Therefore, I am now the only professional raftsman who is able to offer and conduct traditional tours through the Tara Gorge on my log rafts. Nearly all my crew comes from the Pendek rafting clan.

The Tara Gorge

This exceptionally beautiful gorge with its steep faces reaching up to 1400 m is the deepest in Europe. The Tara Gorge is scarcely populated, in most parts impassable and still in its untouched natural state. The crystal-clear Tara is one of the last rivers in Europe with absolutely pure drinking water. Our experienced raftsmen steer our log-rafts safely through its white-waters and numerous rapids. During the trip you can swim, sunbathe, try your skill at steering the raft, or just relax and let your thoughts wander.
